

Pentecost

I went traveling looking for signs of the Holy Spirit. I got myself on YouTube and looked for the word Pentecost and was led through a variety of interesting sites some rather dry dissertations from key heavy weights in the Anglican world like the Arch Bishop of Canterbury explaining how it is the celebration of the birthday of the church.

Another shared how it was actually taken from the Old Testament feast of weeks focused on the Seventh which meant that there was to occur the day after the seventh sabbath following Passover.

Another led me through this display of colorful flames and music that left with the sense that you were in another world. It was a blend of music and language without any particularly noticeable pattern.

A solo choir boy singing "you lift me up"

A communication line

A synapse

A computer modem.

The ability to get online